

A Black Mother

A black mother is a Queen whose shine will never end,
A black mother represents sisters, aunts,
And forever faithful friends.

The glue that holds the family together,
the thread that ties every knot.
A black mother is protective and relentless,
Afraid, she is not!

A black mother represents excellence,
Excellence is in her character and her philosophy of living.
She teaches her children to strive for excellence,
She teaches them to pray to God with thanksgiving.

With wings as mighty as an eagle's,
She carries her family in her arms so that they too can soar.
Bringing a loving fresh wind with each embrace,
And preparation for the lessons life has in store.

A black mother's way of thinking,
Is not focused on eternal things.
Her primary motivation is caring for her family,
And raising her children to be kings and queens.

A black mother is nurturing,
A woman who is always supporting others.
She puts her family before herself,
That is the spirit of a black mother.

Her strength allows her to carry one child on her hip,
With the other child and groceries on her arms.
She has done this balancing act so often,
She handles it with grace and charm.

A black mother walks in the strength of God's Word,
And she uplifts her sisters on every side.
Only allowing herself to be vulnerable in His Presence,
She knows that He Has wiped all the tears she has cried.

The troubles of the world have often caused her to stumble.
But the strength she has within, allows her to continue,
To try again, and to remain humble.

There is often a moment of questioning,
When she wonders if she is doing everything right.
But when she sees the smiles on her family's faces,
Her heart is filled with so much light.

Praying for strength completes a black mother,
Whether she has a husband or not.
In the absence of a man, she will lean on His Word,
For herself and her family, His Word will be their solid rock!

Submitted by:
Yolanda Yvette Higginbotham